Blogs and Web-Based Publications

I started my research weblog www.dutchanglosaxonist.com in November 2015. I blog on, average, twice a month and my blog has, thus far, attracted 155,000 page views by 112,000 individual visitors. On average, my blog currently receives 1,000 views per week.

Guest blogs of mine have appeared on various blogs, including Brill Language & Linguistics Blog; KennisLink; medievalfragments; digventures.com; seafurrers.com; Leiden Medievalists Blog; Leiden Special Collections Blog; Leiden Arts in Society Blog. For an overview, see: <https://dutchanglosaxonist.com/press-and-popularization/guestblogs/>

I am also one of the three main editors of the Leiden Medievalists Blog: <http://www.leidenmedievalistsblog.nl>

Social Media (Facebook, Twitter, YouTube)

- In 2012, I started the Facebook group 'Old English Enthusiasts', which has over 400 members to date - all students and alumni of my courses Old English. The group has developed into an ever-growing network for Dutch people with an interest in Old English and Anglo-Saxon England.
- I am one of the two editors of the Facebook page 'Medieval Studies in Leiden'.
- I have an active Twitter account (since May 2016), which currently has over 2.400 followers.
- Four educational YouTube videos on Old English (available here: <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCIh0ZR1WZhzhQf5WlkkGeUA>), which, to date, have been watched over 30.000 times.

Other

I have been interviewed by local and national newspapers (NRC; Trouw) and radio stations (Omroep Max; NOS) about my research. For an overview, see: <https://dutchanglosaxonist.com/press-and-popularization/>
